Old Buildings, Lincoln's Inn. One of the most important of the Inns of Court, it occupies a site once occupied by the mansion of the Earl of Lincoln, hence its name, but before that by a monastery of the Black Friars. The Gate House in Chancery Lane was built in 1518 by Sir T. Lovell, whose arms it bears. It is said that Ben Jonson worked as a bricklayer on this Gate, when some gentlemen gave him money to pursue his studies. The courtyards and gabled buildings have a fine look of antiquity. Sir Thomas More and many other famous men were among its members.
